PERSONAL BACKGROUND

As a former sales manager, my experience problem-solving, prioritizing tasks and applying analytical skills has inspired my journey into software engineering. The set of skills I've developed drives me to create scalable web applications that people around the world rely on everyday. Through countless interactions with clients and business partners, I have gained the ability to discover, breakdown and create intuitive solutions to complex problems. I am confident that teamwork gives people the opportunity to share ideas and solutions, which drives creativity and innovation.
